... KILLED, 12 HURT IN TRAIN WRECK

...EAD, 70 HURT ...RUHR RIOTING ...AMED ON REDS

BERLIN, May 24.—A red wave of communism today threatened to roll through the Ruhr as the result of French military occupation heavy fighting was reported from Geleskirchen and Dortmund, six persons being killed and seventy wounded in the former city.

Death List Grows

The total death list is believed to be about nine. News of the outbreak caused much anxiety to German officials.

Communists are in control of Gelsenkirchen, but the situation at Dortmund has calmed down.

Reds at Gelsenkirchen stormed all public buildings, applying the torch to those they could not hold.

After seizing Gelsenkirchen the reds began a ruthless reign of terror. They were assisted by absence of police the regular force having been disbanded by the French some weeks ago.

In order to handicap the firemen who were acting as volunteer police, the reds begin a wide spread campaign of incendiarism starting fires all over the town.

French troops, instead of aiding the German citizens, adopted an attitude of "benevolent neutrality."

Seize City Records

The determination of the reds to unloose chaos was shown by their conduct after occupying Gelsenkirchen police headquarters. They seized all the records and threw them into the street from the windows.

According to authoritative information this afternoon, danger of a general strike throughout the Ruhr is lessening. The rank and file of the German workers are anti red.

Feverish activity was reported on the part of the communists at Bochm, but no word of fighting had been received from there.

Firemen Turn Policemen.

ESSEN, May 24.—Several persons were killed and many wounded in fighting which raged throughout the night at Dortmund. Clashes also took place between communists and police at Geaisenkirchen.

Firemen were organized into volunteer police and were assisted by members of the Citizens self defense league.

Gelsenkirchen was gripped in a reign of terror all night with gusts of firing in the streets. A well organized red revolutionary movement has arisen in towns along the northern boundary of the Ruhr as a result of French occupation.

The total membership of the communist organization in the Ruhr is put at 30,000.

There are about a half million workers in the Ruhr, many of whom were driven by dire misery into the ranks of the reds. This applies especially to the coal miners.

Threaten Big Strike.

The reds are threatening a general strike unless the following demands are met:

1—Disarmament of the citizens self defense league;

2—Non interference by firemen in the activities of the communists;

3—Police duties be given to the communists.

SCORES POLICE IN SLAYER HUNT

Whitfield Believed to Be in Wisconsin Riding in Stolen Green Buick Auto

CLEVELAND, May 24.—John Leonard Whitfield, alleged killer of Patrolman Dennis Griffin, is "some where in Wisconsin" today, speeding on a desperate ride with death in a green Buick touring car which he stole shortly after his escape from Madison police Tuesday night.

On his trail are assistant prosecutor Henry J. Williams and C. V. Kilbane, a detective, representing prosecutor attorney Edward C. Stanton. Whitfield was last seen tearing up the miles at Okee, Wis., yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. He is believed to be headed for Milwaukee and a larger squad of Milwaukee police, armed with riot guns, and ordered to "shoot to kill" are awaiting the oncoming car and its lone passenger.

This information was gleaned from reports received at prosecutor Stanton's office here today. Stanton, himself, after sharply criticizing the Cleveland police department for failure to act with more promptness upon the news from Madison assumed personal direction of the man hunt, and it is probable that all other sums allowed by the county to hunt down Whitfield will be spent by men working directly under the prosecutor.

Despite the fact that $1,000 had been turned over to Chief of police, Jacob W. Graul to aid in the hunt for Whitfield, it was not until 5 o'clock last night, upon receipt of an official message from Chief Shaughnessy of Madison, that Graul dispatched a man to help the Wisconsin authorities in running down clues and aid in Whitfield's identification should he be recaptured. Stanton was unsparing in his denunciation of the delay.

LORAIN, May 24.—Jean Hamilton Barkhouer, 22, of 11120 St. Claire avenue, Cleveland, was fatally injured in an accident on the Lake road, Stop 7, east of Sheffield, last night. Her companion, J. E. Herron, had his left leg injured. She was thrown about ten feet and landed on the pavement. She was taken to St. Joseph's hospital in an unconscious condition and died two hours later.

The accident took place when a machine driven by Al Virant, 1700 E 28th street, Lorain, struck the car in which she was riding from the rear.

Both Coroner Perry and Sheriff Underhill criticised hospital authorities and the attending physicians for not reporting the accident and deather of Miss Barkhouer to them until this morning. The sheriff would have made an immediate investigation of the causes of the accident if he had been notified. Now it turns out that Virant was driving very fast, and after taking the girl to the hospital left for Cleveland, where he stays for a week, and his present address is unknown.

Coroner Perry this morning had the body of the girl detained at Lorain, and as there were no marks on the body has ordered a post mortem to ascertain the exact cause of death. He also states that her companion, J. E. Herron, had a leg broken. Herron told the coroner that Miss Barkhouer was the youngest of five sisters, and that he had been keeping company with her for two years. She was a handsome, finely educated girl, whose untimely death is of deep sorrow to her family.

HITS SNAG IN REFORMING CABINET

New British Premier Finds Men Unwilling to Serve Under New Regime

LONDON, May 24.—Premier Stanley Baldwin began to strike snags today in his task of reforming England's tory cabinet. Sir Robert Horne, former chancellor of the exchequer, who was offered that post in the new government, sent word he could not accept, owing to personal business interests.

Austin Chamberlain is due from Paris this afternoon. He has been offered a post in the new government, but he probably will confer with Sir Robert Horne before giving a definite answer.

The tory party is still split as a result of the "offensive" of the tory "die hards" against the Lloyd George coalition ministry, which accounts for the refusal of certain members to join the Baldwin government.

Another possibility is that Leopold Amery, of the admiralty, may be taken into the cabinet. The Daily Mail circulated a report that Amery might be offered the post of chancellor of the exchequer.

The Morning Post said Lord Robert Cecil, whose recent political activities have been in support of the league of nations, had been offered the post chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster. This is not an important portfolio, but it gives the holder a voice in government affairs.

Refusal of Sir Robert Horne to join the cabinet was a blow to Premier Baldwin. The prime minister had hoped to reunite the tory party and eliminate dissensions through appointment of certain tories who had held office under Lloyd George.

Sir Robert Horne conferred with Premier Baldwin during the morning. Later it was reported he had intimated willingness to join the government at some later date when his private business affairs will permit.

Premier Baldwin is finding it most difficult to obtain a suitable man for chancellor of the exchequer.

DONAHEY OPENS CAMPAIGN ON GAMBLING

COLUMBUS, May 24.—Governor Donahey has declared war on gambling. In a proclamation issued and directed to Mayors, sheriffs and other executive officials, the governor declared that gambling on baseball, punch boards and slot machines must stop in Ohio, or the officers entrusted with law enforcement, who continue to allow gambling, will find themselves displaced.

It is said by friends of the governor that the prime cause for the order is the fact that his ten year old son, Vic, Jr., fell afoul of the baseball pool gamblers, and lost his weekly allowance of spending money. The governor is said to have concluded that gamblers who permit ten year old boys to indulge in games of chance should be curbed.

Crusade at Cincy.

CINCINNATI, May 24.—Warfare against baseball lotteries was started prominently this morning in Cincinnati when Judge George F. Eyrich, of the municipal police court, dealt a $50 fine to Jacob Glaser, 36, who runs a cafe.

"I'll give you a ten-day stay of execution to try to bring in the ringleader," said the judge. "If you produce him I'll suspend your sentence."

Baseball lottery tickets taken from Glaser referred to a set of prizes awarded weekly, worth $6,000.

Three other arrests were made by detectives who found baseball lottery slips.

"This lottery game must go," said Judge Eyrich. "Governor Donahey is against it, and so is every person who believes in clean sports. It will make young folks gamble and eventually it will ruin the cleanest and greatest of all American sports."

FAILS TO FIND ASSAILANT OF GIRL

Sheriff Underhill and his deputies had every road leading into this county guarded last night, in an effort to arrest three young men headed this way in a Willys-Knight car they had stolen in Toledo. Near Fremont they are alleged to have assaulted a fourteen-year-old girl and left her by the roadside nearer dead than alive. The Sheriff and a posse went to South Amherst and waited until a late hour before returning, in hopes that the men would put in an appearance, but it is believed they struck south from Huron county and made their escape.

In Flanders Fields

By JOHN McCRAE

In Flanders Fields, the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

We are the dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders Fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe.
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high,
If you break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders Fields.

Keep Faith with them . They are not dead. They sleep. The spirit of their glorious sacrifice watches us. Have we forgotten? No! A thousand times--No!

Those khaki-clad lads of '17 and '18 did not hesitate when duty called them. They went. They conquered. Let's you and I ---fellow citizens of Elyria---nothesitate now to keep the faith with them and

MORE RAILROADS REQUIRED FOR DEVELOPMENT OF WORLD'S PRODUCING POWER

By O. P. AUSTIN

Statistician, The National City Bank of New York.

New railways with which to reach the interior of the undeveloped sections of the globe will be demanded by the consuming world in the immediate future. The number of mouths which must be fed and bodies which must be clothed goesgon increasing at an appalling speed. World population, which was estimated at 780,000,000 in 1820, was 1,830,000,000 in 1920, having thus increased 135% in the single century. The actual increase in numbers in the first twenty years of the century under consideration was 170,000,000 and in the closing twenty years of the century 287,000,000, notwithstanding the fact that the recent twenty year period includes the greatest war that the world has ever known.

Should the present rate of increase continue, the world's population by 1950 would approximate 2,250,000,000, or nearly 25% more than at the present time. When we find that the present world production of the great food and clothing staples, wheat, corn, rye, potatoes, sugar, cotton, wool and fibres, is in practically every instance less than that of the years immediately preceding the war, we involuntarily wonder where the world is to obtain the necessary quantity of food and clothing that the increased population of the near future will demand.

GREAT AREAS STILL UNDEVELOPED

This question is answered by an examination of the accompanying map showing the land and water transportation facilities of the world and noting the enormous land areas yet awaiting transportation facilities, to enable them to send their possible products to the water's edge where a now plentiful supply of steamships will be available to carry them across the ocean to the sections of the world which do not produce enough for their own requirements. It will be seen that the interior areas of four of the six grand divisions of the world, South America, Africa, Asia and Australia, are yet lacking in railway facilities to enable them to move their possible products to the water's edge. The shipbuilding activities of the war and the years which immediately followed it have given to the world ample facilities for transporting merchandise on the oceans. But railway construction has been practically suspended since the beginning of the war and when we examine the maps of the continents above named it is apparent that they have within their respective interiors enormous producing areas which have no facilities for moving their products or possible products to the water's edge.

South America, for instance, with an area of 7,570,000 square miles has but 55,000 miles of railway while the United States with an area less than half that of South America has 252,000 miles. Africa, with an area of 11,620,000 square miles has but 32,000 miles of railway, while Europe with an area one-third as much as that of Africa has 237,000 miles of road. Asia, with an area more than five times that of the United States, has less than one-third as much railway mileage as our own, and Australia, which approximates the United States in area, has but one-tenth as many miles of road as we have.

The comparative absence of railways in the four grand divisions above referred to, South America, Africa, Asia and Australia, is evidenced by the fact that the number of miles of railway for each one thousand square miles of area is in the United States 83; in all of North America 36; in Europe 62; in South America 7; in Australia 8; in Asia 4, and in Africa 3.

PRODUCTIVE LANDS READY FOR RAILWAY DEVELOPMENT

Nor can it be argued that the absence of railways in the undeveloped continents is due to a lack of producing power of their great interior areas. South America has probably less of what might be termed "desert" land in proportion to its total area than the United States had in the early stages of its development, and her mountain areas are in no greater proportion than our own. Africa, it is true, has her Sahara, Asia her Arabian and great Gobi Deserts, and Australia her great arid interior, but our own experience with that area which a half century ago was called the "Great American Desert" has shown that cultivation along its edges increased the producing power of the adjacent lands, and the application of water by irrigation has rendered the arid land extremely productive.

This development of the producing power of our own desert areas followed the extension of the railways into that area, and similar experiences might be expected to follow, an extension of transportation facilities to and within those areas of Asia, Africa and Australia now looked upon as deserts, and enable them to not only support a greater producing population but contribute largely to the wants of other parts of the world. Aside, however, from the now "desert" sections of Africa and Asia there are great areas of absolutely fertile lands of high producing power which only need transportation and a larger population to enable them to contribute enormous quantities of food and manufacturing material to the densely populated sections of the globe in which such materials are actually required.

RAILROADS AND POPULATION

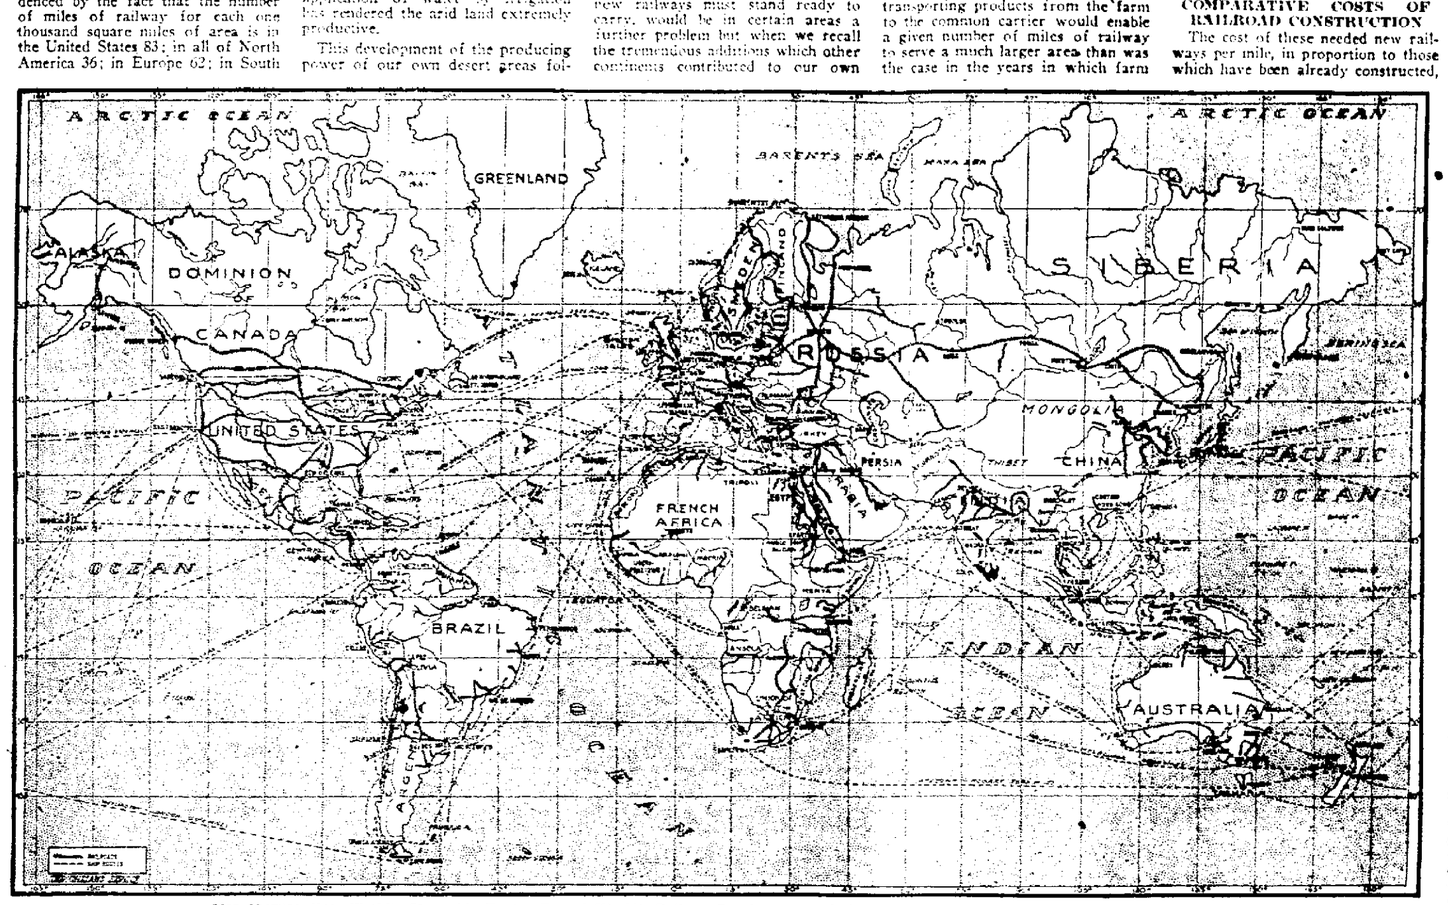

True, the question of population with which to produce the foodstuffs and manufacturing material which new railways must stand ready to carry, would be in certain areas a further problem but when we recall the tremendous additions which other continents contributed to our own growing use of agricultural machinery including farm motors and tractors would increase enormously the producing power of the population as compared with that in which the present great producing areas were developed, and the use of the automobile and freight truck for transporting products from the farm to the common carrier would enable a given number of miles of railway to serve a much larger area than was the case in the years in which farm products were grown and harvested with only man power and transported to the railway by the aid of horses or oxen, which necessarily consumed a considerable percentage of the food products of the area which they served and which could now be served in large part by mechanical power.

Railway development in recent years has not kept pace with the development of population, commerce, or carrying power on the oceans. The railway mileage of the world in 1920 was practically the same as at the beginning of the war, while population increased 10% and the nominal tonnage of steam vessels on the oceans increased 14% in the same period. Thus the ratio of world railway mileage to world population or ocean transportation declined during the period 1914-1920, but meantime the demands of the world for food and the facilities for moving it across the oceans continued to increase.

COMPARATIVE COSTS OF RAILROAD CONSTRUCTION

The cost of these needed new railways per mile, in proportion to those which have been already constructed, would probably be less than the world average, for they would be chiefly constructed in areas now sparsely populated and therefore the "right of way" including the cost of the land actually utilized by them would be in most cases nominal and in other instances where the population is dense but wages low the labor cost of construction would be comparatively small, though this would be in some degree offset by the higher prices now prevailing and also by the cost of transporting the rails and equipment which would necessarily be brought from other parts of the world. The cost of railway construction, of course, varies greatly not merely in relation to the physical characteristics of the areas through which they run but especially in the sums demanded for right of way, and the land on which the roads are built. Railway construction in certain countries of Europe where the population was already dense and lands and existing buildings of an expensive character was extremely costly and in certain of the European countries which were fully developed prior to the advent of the railway the cost including the right of way and land upon which they were built brings the present estimate of "capital per mile" to from $150,000 to $250,000, while in the new countries where railways preceded population the capital per mile is stated at less than half that in the older and already developed communities, averaging from $25,000 to $75,000 per mile, as against $150,000 to $250,000 in the more densely populated countries of Europe.

Recent tabulations by the Bureau of Railway Economics and other high authorities put the "net capitalization" per mile of the railroads of the United States at $68,787, while the capital per mile in the European countries (which were already developed when railway construction occurred) is double and in some cases treble that of the United States. The "capital per mile" of the railways of France (exclusive of state railways) is stated at $186,394, and the United Kingdom $274,605. In densely populated Japan the capital per mile is set down at $111,156, while in the newer countries where railways preceded density of population the cost is much lower, ranging from $24,839 in Western Australia to $60,043 in New Zealand, and $65,714 in Canada. The total capitalization of all the railways of the world apparently approximates $70,000,000,000 covering the 750,000 miles of road, suggesting an average cost of $93,000 per mile, while as above suggested the cost per mile in the areas not yet developed would, even at the present higher prices, probably be materially below the world average of earlier years.

DINNER STORIES

With amusement John Drew still recalls a letter that he once received from his nephew, John Barrymore, telling how he had been thrown out of bed into a bathtub by the San Francisco earthquake and had been put to work piling rocks by the army when he reached the street.

"Yes," Mr. Drew is wont to add, "it took a convulsion of nature to put him into the bathtub and the United States army to make him work."

He was an English artist, reports London Opinion. What is more, he was an artist of that school who never spoil the picture for a pennyworth of color. He had just given the last touch to a purple-and-blue landscape when his wife came into the studio.

"My dear," said the artist, "this—er—landscape I was—er—telling you about. I am at a loss for a title. Can you suggest one?"

"Why not call it 'Home'?" she asked, after a long, lingering look.

"'Home'?" said the artist. "Why call it 'Home'?"

"Because," she answered meekly, "there's no place like it!"

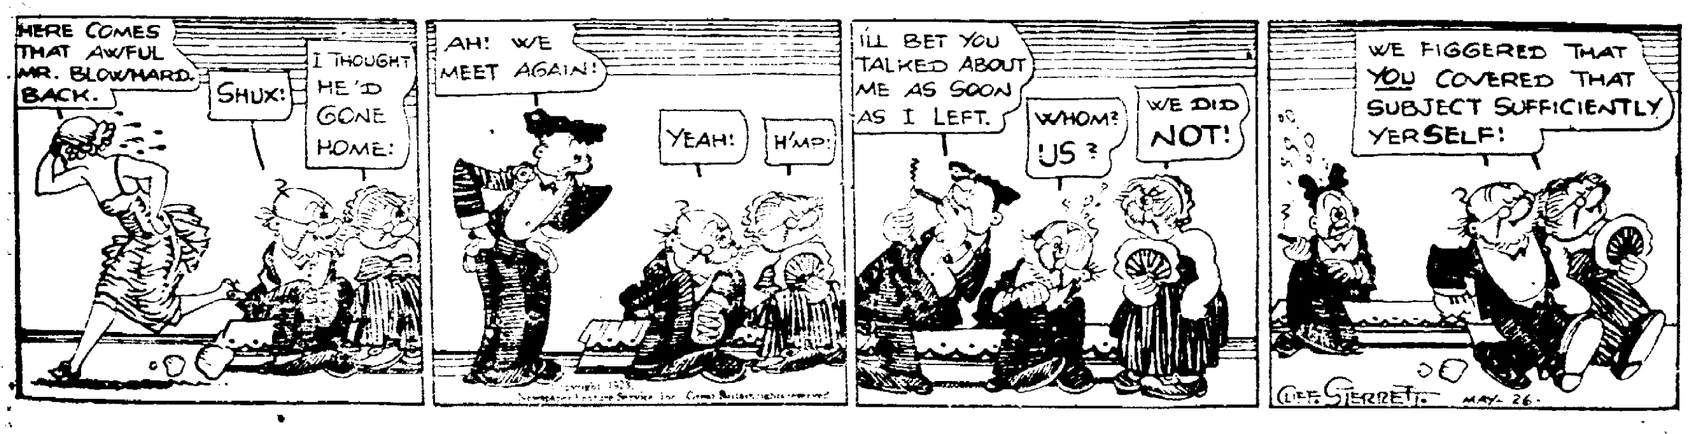

The head of the house (so-called) had been ordered to do away with the family cat. It had outlived its usefulness. Half an hour later the missus began a search for hubby and found him out behind the barn gazing meditatively at the doomed feline.

"Why all the worry?" queried friend wife.

"Well, you sent me out here to kill this animule," he replied. "I'm wondering how many lives he has left. I'm no Bluebeard."

INEY POINTS TO HIGHER BOND PRICES

BABSON SEES OPPORTUNITY FOR STORS DURING THE BALANCE OF THE YEAR

HILLS, Mass. the investor buy now or wait in them at lower uppermost in the esting public. A ts in conservative March has been but there seems l of discussion as the beginning of pward or whether y another reaction such as that ruling in the bond market of the first three months of this year.

Roger W. Babson's statement on the situation, issued today, presents evidence which deserves careful consideration by everyone interested in the future of investment securities.

"Money rates are easy," according to Mr. Babson, "and will continue at about their present position for some time to come.

"January saw Commercial Paper at 4 1-2 precent on the average. In February it rose to 4 3-4 percent, March brought it slightly above 5 percent. In April it ruled at 5 1-8 percent. Early May brought it back to 5 percent. Present indications are that will continue at about this same level thruout the summer. Time Loans have been made by the banks on about this same basis, while Mortgage Money is available in the East at 5 percent to 6 percent.

"From the point of view of the bond market this easing in money rates indicates a slackening in the demand for commercial loans, an increase in reserve on the part of our banks and a shrinking up of the increased credit necessary to finance the sudden spurt in business at the beginning of this year. Since it is the habit of our banks to invest surplus funds in bonds as reserves grow, and to liquidate these bonds when commercial needs demand increased borrowing on the part of the general business public, it means that the banks of the country have turned from a policy of selling their holdings to a policy of buying them back again. While there are no figures available on the effect that bank purchases and sales have on the general investment market, it stands to reason that the banks represent the largest single customer for bonds in the country and that their position must have an effect on bond prices. When the banks were selling they not only removed their purchasing power from the bond market but flooded it with their own holdings. When they reversed this position the stream of bonds that has been coming into the market from the bank is shut off and they offer purchasing power not only for new but also for old issues. As long as they are buying and holding their bonds, prices cannot very well go below present levels, and should evidence a slight strengthening.

"When we examine the outlook as to the possibility of the banks changing their present position we see but two factors which might cause such a shift during the balance of the year.

"If in reaching the peak of its long swing bull movement, the stock market develops into a foolish spurt, it may be necessary for certain of our banking interests to liquidate bond holdings in order to provide the cash necessary for stock loans on a higher price level. This might cause a temporary sag in bond prices which would be recovered as the flurry subsided. If the advance in the stock market does not develop into a spree of speculation but proceeds on an orderly basis it probably will have a slight effect upon bond prices.

"The other factor to be considered is that of crop moving which always puts a seasonable strain on our financial machinery beginning about the first of August and ending the latter part of October. This seasonal demand for additional credit may force commercial rates up a fraction, probably not more than 1-2 of 1 percent. This probably will cause a slight recession in bond prices. It may not, however, offset an advance that is possible between now and that time.

"All present indications point to easier money and higher bond prices during 1924. I doubt very much whether it will be possible to buy good investment bonds this year at anywhere near their present levels. From the long swing point of view statistics clearly indicate that the general trend of bond prices will be upward for the next fifteen to twenty years.

"From the investors' point of view the present bond market offers a real opportunity. Prices may react slightly on either of the two developments outlined above, but I am not at all sure that the investor who waits and tries to pick these exact low points will save enough to make up for the interest he may lose in the meantime. If you are buying securities for a regular income I suggest that you buy sound, long term bonds now, and that you continue to buy them for the remainder of 1923 as funds become available."

A LITTLE SLICE O' LIFE

Life brings many surprises.
You can't always sometimes tell.
Other day on Long Island,
A school inspector was visiting,
And he chanced upon one school
Where there was a big racket.
The boys were all out of seats,
And one, slightly taller than
The rest, was haranguing them loudly.
Every once in awhile
One of the others would
Take a punch at him.
The inspector tired of the racket,
And, picking out the largest boy,
Cuffed him soundly on the head.
"Hey, you, cut that stuff!"
Yelled one of the, smaller lads.
"That guy is our teacher."

CONFESSIONS OF A CYNIC

I believe that the fish in the Aquarium often have just as much fun looking at the people as the people do in looking at the fish.

I am satisfied to live as I do and I am not grateful to any self-appointed reformer who criticises me.

I am not glad that the banquet season is about over. The reason I am not glad is because I never go to the things, anyhow.

I am always at a loss to know whether the country is in danger more from the giddy younger set or from the old fogies.

I don't go to the theatre to discuss business problems, but I might just as well, because everybody around me does it.

I always buy an alarm clock, and the first thing I do is to unscrew the bell off it and throw it away.

I never have a problem to solve without receiving oceans of advice from people who have failed to solve the same problem.

FROM OUR PARIS CORRESPONDENT

Paris, April 7.

Let me state that the American woman (average) is the most beautiful woman in the world. I have seen more beautiful women walk down Fifth avenue, New York city, than I have seen at any race track around Paris. There is a magnetism—a charm of manner—about our women which cannot be beaten. The clothes with that "Paris chic" are built or designed for Spaniards, French, Armenians and others.

Let the American woman dress herself in the U. S. and she exudes that something—or, "Je ne sais quoi"—which is so pleasing.

Your correspondent is dining with an American woman tonight.

PROGRESS OF THE DANCING CHAMPIONSHIP

Miss Minerva Higgins of Spruce Falls, Idaho, held the dancing championship for almost a whole day last week. She danced 62 hours without stopping and wore out seven pairs of shoes and nine dancing partners.

Miss Lucretia Bilkins of Oil City, Pa., claimed the championship immediately for, although she did not dance any longer than did Miss Higgins, she wore out nine pairs of shoes and twelve dancing partners.

This held the championship record until 3 o'clock the following morning when the important news was flashed over the wires that Miss Dansy Tibbits of Chicago had beaten all records by dancing 72 hours, wearing out fourteen pairs of pumps and seventeen partners.

At 4 o'clock that afternoon it was officially announced that Miss Lucy Purdy of Wheeling, W. Va., had just worn out her nineteenth partner and her sixteenth pair of shoes. She finished dancing on the 74th hour and was declared the champion hoofer of the universe.

She held this championship until 2 o'clock that afternoon when it was claimed for Miss Chlorine Stubbs of Oskaloosa, Iowa had danced 81 hours and had two shoe dealers and their entire stocks present in the hall.

Inasmuch as the championship changed hands twenty-seven times in one week, it is now looked upon as one of the important American sports. At any rate it seems to be important to the shoe manufacturers.

TO J. M. O'H.

I do not need the lilacs to recall
That age-old time, for ever in my thoughts
Their fragrance lies;
Remembering is such an easy thing
When nights of spring sing silent songs of love;
Those days have gone, but when the springtime lifts
Again her petaled hands to softly strew
Sweet fragrance o'er the morn, my lips repeat
Old memories—our memories.—Doris Kenyon.

KIWANIS TRIM EXCHANGEITES WED. 5 TO 2

The Kiwanis Club defeated the Exchange Club in a well played game at Cascade park yesterday afternoon by a score of 5 to 2. The game was full of pep, and the rooting of the partisans on each side spurred the players to do their best. Jimmy Simpson, for the Kiwanis scintillated around second, hit the ball hard, fielded well, and made a spectacular slide to second that brought down the crowd. Gilmore for the Exchange club made a spectacular catch in left field, that would do credit to Tris Speaker. Malik and Fitch both pitched well and the game was close enough to suit everybody.

CRIQUI BATTLE WON'T END REIGN OF KILBANE, IF DOPE'S RELIABLE

A fighting Frenchman, who traces back his fighting instinct to two marshals of France, and a scrapping Irishman who might find equally famous fighters in his family tree, but who is content to thank the school of hard knocks for start in the fight game, are finishing training for their battle June 2.

And these two fighting machines will battle for no less than the featherweight championship of the world.

The French lad is Eugene Criqui The Irish descendent of Erin but native son of the U. S. A. is John Patrick Kilbane.

Be the fighting instinct hereditary or acquired, both have it. And, boy, what a battle they ought to wage

Kilbane now stands the favorite. And Criqui has no control over one of the reasons That is the fact that he hails from Europe. History has proved that American fighters, big and small, outmeasure the best Europe can produce, from the old prize ring days down to the debute here of Georges Carpentier.

And on a basis of reckoned skill Kilbane is favored. The champion carries with him what is believed to be a stiffer punch, a bit more science, and the psychological advantage that a champ carries into the ring. He also carries with him the skill and cunning which has enabled him to hold a title longer than any living man.

Criqui Another Hero.

To my mind, the Criqui-Kilbane bout was made possible in much the same way as was the Carpentier-Dempsey affair—by the personal popularity of the record invader. Carpentier's ring record showed no cause why he should meet Jack Dempsey for the world title. But he was Europe's heavyweight hero and the idol of all France because of his war service. Criqui's case is similar. Criqui laid aside his gloves for a gun the minute war broke. He came out with the left side of his jaw shot away, his nose flattened and one ear mutilated. What prestige he lacked in the ring was forgotten. He became Criqui, the great little fighter for France. The kind of warfare didn't matter.

Criqui is fast and clever. He has a lightning jab much like Kilbane's enemies. Even Kilbane's enemies around New York will not say that Criqui's is quite as fast or dangerous as Johnny's, however.

The Frenchman has the endurance, too.

His one weak spot seems to be that jaw, which a German bullet shattered. Criqui himself says that it isn't any more tender than it ever was. He does wear a guard about it on training, however, which can be taken for what it's worth.

Kibaine in Shape.

Kilbane will enter the ring in great shape. I'm sure of that. I've looked him over. He has lost little speed in the decade or more he has reigned. But he seems not to have lost any since he knocked out Danny Frush in seven rounds two years ago. And he had enough then to lick any featherweight extant.

Kilbane's punch is there. He can shoot in that left with deadly precision. Another vital factor in Kilbane's favor is his wind. He still seems to have plenty of it. Age has not found him in the chest.

Kilbane stops all talk that this will be his last fight or that he desires to step out by saying that he will not surrender the title or retire until he is knocked flatter than a restaurant turnover.

Both fighters have an added incentive for winning June 2. The every-challenging, loquacious Johnny Dundee has been signed to fight the winner. Kilbane, in particular, wants to satisfy him.

Regardless of the outcome of the Criqui-Kilbane fight it must be regarded as another battle of the century. And it looks like another victory for the U. S. A.

Armitage, Surprise Pitcher, Jips Gang; Colsons Win Battle

It's a sad story we have to tell of the game between the Chronicle-Telegram and the Colsons at Cascade park last night. The Printers might have won it Catcher Stallings had not sprained his ankle while sliding home in the second inning with the score 2 and 1 in favor of the Colsons.

Also they might have won if Rainey and Conklin had not struck out with men on bases, if Hudnut hadn't muffed a fly or two; if Storm hadn't tried to play short stop and third base at the same time, if the sun hadn't shone in the fielders faces, if the weather hadn't been so cold, and if Lord had got there on time so as to fix up the score. A lot of other it's might be put in including if the Colsons hadn't hit the ball so hard.

Stallings accident took the heart out of the printers, and a substitute had to be picked from the crowd. He did well for a left hand catcher with a right hand glove, but Stephan had to let up with both speed and curves, and the Colson's batted their way to victory. In view of the circumstances but five innings were played. The complete score could not be secured, but it wouldn't look good in print any how.

Colsons.. 2 5 5 0 2—15 16 1
Printers .1 0 0 1 2— 4 2 6

Printers Post-script—The final result is actually due to Jim Armitage, one of the surprises, who was to pitch after the third inning with Pe... Stankard as catcher. The printers let the Colsons run rampant for three innings, having utmost faith in the columnist with his assistant Realizing that we were double-crossed we settled down and just to show that we had the best team ,outplayed the Colson's 3 to 2 in the last two innings.

tory and the first division, winning 7 to 1.

The Cubs finished second to the Braves, 6 to 1 McNamara pitching good ball after relieving Fillingim in the third inning.

The Indians forsook baseball for football, and successive drop kicks by Sewell, Lutzke and Myatt, gave the Red Sox an 8 to 6 victory.

Jack Bentley, the left-handed luxury, pitched the Giants to a 4 to 1 decision over the Cardinals.

Another home run, his sixteenth, slid off the big bat of Cy Williams as another defeat slid off the Phils under his jaw, the Pirates winning in the ninth, 7 to 6, on Traynor's triple and Grimm's double.

The Dodgers climbed over the Reds to their fourth straight vic-

Try A "Buddy Brooks Shave"

No Razor!

You shaved this morning? What will you do about going out to call, or to the theatre, this evening.

Will you shave again?

It isn't necessary at all—if you have a can of "Buddy Brooks". Just sprinkle a little "Buddy Brooks" into your hands and rub it on to your face.

Try this and see how fresh you look and feel. And you will look the same all evening too.

Lots Better Than Talc

For "Buddy Brooks" is entirely different from ordinary "talcum." It isn't "slick" and "shiny" like talc. Neither is it "sticky" and "heavy" like women's face powder. But it is just right for a man's use. We call it a "A Man's Powder for Men"—but if you let the women folks get hold of your can you'll have to buy yourself another—sure as fate.

For use after shaving "Buddy Brooks" hasn't an equal. Not only does it look so well and feel so pleasant, but it is also highly healing and soothing. Any little cut or skin irritation heals right up when you use "Buddy Brooks."

It's just made for you.

Any drug store will supply you. Just ask for a can of "Buddy Brooks."

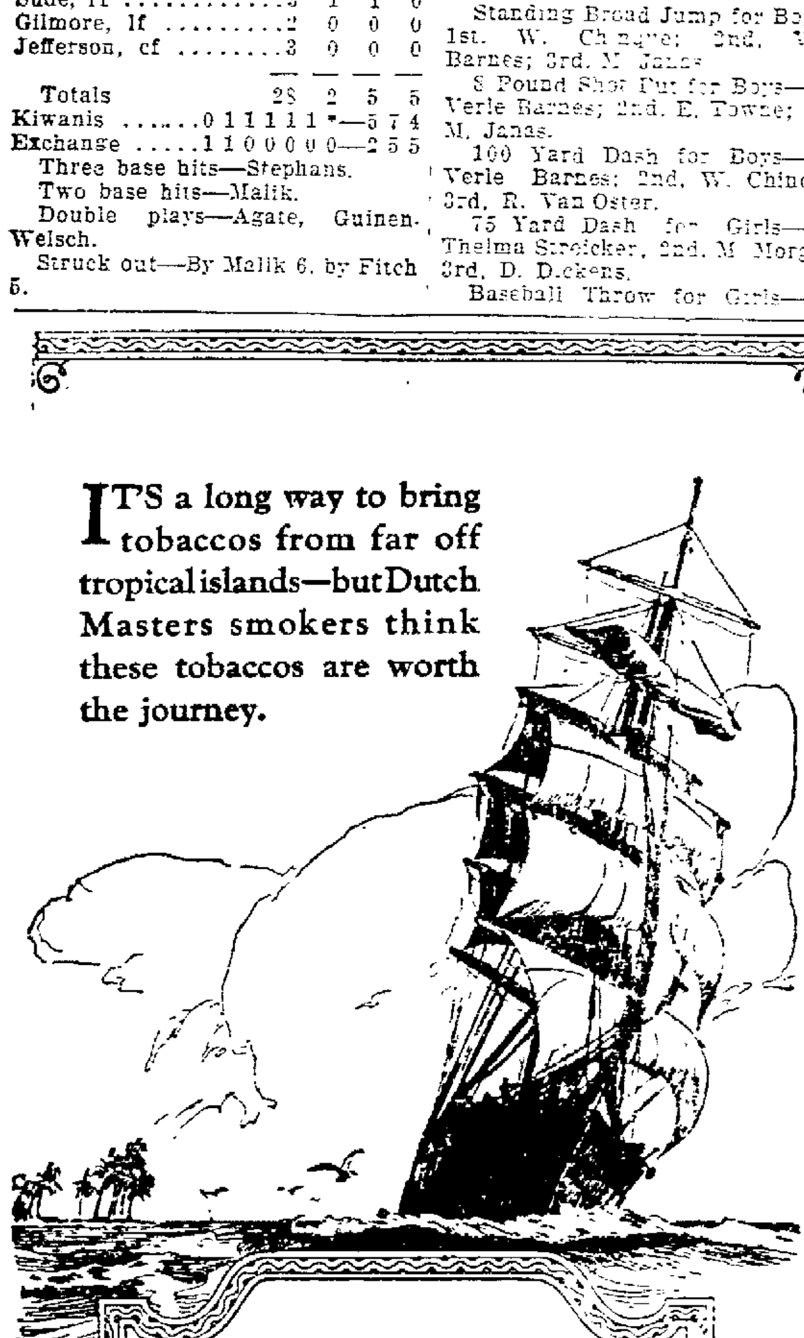

Sold and recommended from experience by Muir's Cut Rate Drug Store and every other good drug store and toilet goods counter in Elyria.—Adv.

PALLBEARERS MIDGETS WIN FROM GATES TEAM

Elmer Bainbridge was the star hitting out two home runs, and pitched his team to victory. The game went but three innings, and was then called on account of darkness.

... in the major leagues ... present races being fought out according to pre-season dope, with the two New York teams at the top.

The Worcester team has been giving the champion New Haven outfit a real battle at the top of the Eastern league standing.

Bill Killifer's Cubs haven't set any ball parks on fire while on the road, all of their best playing having been staged on the Chicago lot.

Manager Bobby Robinson pulled a wise deal when he grabbed Jacques Fournier. The old first sacker is playing great ball for the Brooklyn team.

Babe Adams, Pittsburgh's veteran pitcher now twirling his 20th season under the big top, is in a fair way to equal Cy Young's record of 22 yards in the big leagues.

Young Gene Robertson, who holds down the hot corner for the Browns, is about the niftiest third baseman who has busted into the big show in years.

It doesn't happen very often that a major league team is under the twenty-five-player limit on May 15, but such was the case with the Red Sox this season.

Chicago fans regret that Comiskey and Dick Kerr didn't settle the pitcher's salary question this spring so that Dick could help the White Sox up the present ladder.

With the exception of Harry Heilman of Detroit the National league hitters are showing the way to their American rivals. Recent averages show 44 players batting for .300 or better in the National and 25 in the American league.

The Athletics certainly look like they were there this year. It's been a long hard grind for Connie Mack since he broke up his championship team several years ago, but now the old pilot can see the "silver lining."

Walter Cruise of the Braves, a heavy hitter in former seasons, appears not to have been able to find the range this spring.

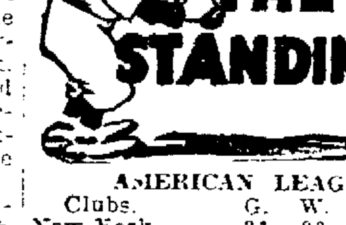

DINNER STORIES

"A printer out in my section of Ohio was promised the job of printing some school board ballots," says Senator Fess of Ohio. "The work would give him a profit of about $50, and he needed the money. He had it all spent even before the time came to print the ballots. Then the board of elections sent him word that they wouldn't need the ballots, as there was no contest for school board.

"'You'd give me the job if you gave it to anybody, wouldn't you?' the printer asked.

"'Oh, certainly,' they told him.

"So the printer got out a petition and ran for school board, thus making a contest, and they gave him the job of printing the ballots, after all. As soon as they were printed and the bill o. k'd. he withdrew as a candidate."

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

The Way Madge "Jollied" Mrs. Durkee Home in Better Spirits.

I LOOKED at Mrs. Durkee closely to find out what thought lay behind her comment upon Dr. Foxham's farewell words to her.

Was she apprehensive that she, too, like the soldiers she had named, might not "come back" if she followed his advice and went under a surgeon's knife? Or was her speech simply a flippant mask for the nervousness which I knew was shaking her?

Whichever it was, I knew that my cue was to ignore it, and I took the surest way of changing the tenor of her thoughts.

"It would be a joke on me," I remarked with apparent uneasiness, "if that taxi shouldn't be in front after all my assurances to you that it would."

"Oh, Madge!" She caught her breath, changed her walk to a funny little trot, dragging me with her. "Hurry till we see. I'll never forgive myself for leaving those suitcases in the cab."

"Yes, you will," I smiled, as I stepped ahead of her, and swung the street door open, "for here are the man and the cab, both apparently intact. I am sure the suitcases are equally safe."

Mrs. Durkee Announces Her Plan.

"I won't be till we get a chance to open 'em," she replied darkly, but—I was relieved to note—in a subdued key. "He had a chance to drive somewhere near and take out everything he wanted. Look at him closely, Madge, he looks bulgy to me."

She had the grace to whisper the last words, but they set me off into irrepressible laughter, and I saw the cabman glance furtively at me, as if he suspected me of insanity.

"I don't see anything to laugh at," she whispered pettishly when we were safely in the taxi, with a thick glass slide between ourselves and the driver. "He does look bulgy. I'll bet he's got Dicky's dress suit wrapped around him inside of his coat this minute."

The evident sincerity in her voice, the wrathful belligerence of her manner, set me off again, and I laughed until she—always the possessor of unruly risibles—was compelled to join me.

"When we get to the station, I'll grab him by the collar and hold him while you search him," I proposed gravely, after I recovered my breath.

"I only wish I had the nerve to do it," she retorted, then added with apparent irrelevance: "What time is it?" and I knew that her fussing concerning the taxi driver was at an end.

"Ten minutes of 3."

"Do you suppose we can make that 2:10 to Marvin?"

"I am sure we can, barring some traffic jam, which isn't likely."

"That will be fine. I do so want to get home and out of this rig before Alfred and Leila reach the house. And don't you peep about seeing me in the city. I'll hide Dicky's suitcase so they won't suspect anything."

"But," I protested, dismayed, "surely you're going to tell them about Dr. Foxham's advice."

"Eat, Drink and Be Merry—"

"No, I'm not," she said, "but YOU are. I'll give you plenty of chance after dinner. But I don't want to be anywhere around when you talk about it. I'll—I'll do anything Alfred thinks best, although I do want to wait until Dr. Pringle gets back to see what he thinks about me. But I want Alfred and the rest of you to go ahead and make any arrangements that are necessary and tell me about it only when you're ready. I'm going to forget the whole thing from now on—that is, when the pain will let me, and have the best time going. What's that old verse—'eat, drink and be merry——' "

"Stop it," I said with an assumed pettishness I hoped would be effective. "You're enough to give anybody the horrors. Even if you do have to go to the hospital, you'll be there only a week, and everybody gets over operations nowadays. It isn't fashionable to do anything else. And just think what an interesting invalid you'll be. I hereby promise to bring or send you something pretty every day until you're well again."

"Look out. You may be bankrupt," she warned, but I saw that the idea had caught her fancy and that she was revelling in it as would a child.

"Then I'll gather all of 'em you haven't eaten, and have an auction to retrieve my fallen fortunes," I said lightly, and was rewarded for the banal jest by a peal of genuine laughter.

For the minute, at least, I had succeeded in banishing her morbid fears, and, indeed, I saw no further sign of them during our railroad journey to Marvin, nor the short taxi ride to the Durkee home.

She was in exceptionally high spirits as we drew up to the house door, but her face darkened with annoyance as a woman who evidently had been ringing the bell in vain, turned to greet us, and we saw the well-remembered but unwelcome face and figure of Bess Dean.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

SONG

The poets say that only they
Struck dumb by God will sing;
That those who know the deepest woe
Can wake Song's vibrant string.
If so it be, it seems to me
That Life's each grief and wrong
In every sense, makes recompense
When it gives birth to Song.
—Gertrude Callaghan.

THE NATIVE SON

Stoop-shouldered and care-worn and weazened,
And knock-kneed and trembling and small.
Through traffic he squirms, and he meets all the germs.
It is queer how this man lives at all.
His rent it is boosted each Tuesday;
They charge him nine prices for smelts,
And for sugar and flour, which go up every hour—
But he wouldn't live anywhere else.
And he would say "No!" to a million in dough
If he had to live anywhere else.

WHAT'S IN THE NEEDLE?

We have problems confronting us that demand the Master Mind of Sherlock. For instance, why is it that a man in the clothing business, when he is going to move (even though it be only directly across the street) must clear out every garment he has at a price 50 per cent. less than what it cost him? Why cannot a $60 suit or overcoat be carried across the street and sold for $60?

We are no doubting Thomas, and we realize and admit that the stock of perfectly good clothes must be "sacrificed," that "prices must be slashed," that disposal prices must be "ridiculously low" and that "nothing can be taken to the new store"—BUT WHY?

THE VALUE OF CENSORSHIP

An interesting demonstration of the futility of the ways of the censor with the public was made recently in connection with a "searching investigation" into the teachings of a certain Mid-western State University.

A group of well-meaning and zealous people of the city in which the University is located, inspired by their belief that certain doctrines which were out of harmony with the teachings of the Bible as they interpreted them, were being presented to the students, demanded the right to censor the text books of the institution. The departments of course which received the closest scrutiny were Science and Philosophy. The professors were called up before the star-chamber sessions of the investigating committee and the books were one by one considered in the light of their conformity or lack of conformity to the ideas and beliefs of the investigators.

The science department of course suffered wholesale at their hands, and one book at least, used by the philosophy department, was put upon the blacklist. It became known that one certain chapter of this book which was considered to be quite unfit for the perusal of the youth of the state, while as a matter of fact, up to the time of the investigation it never had been read by them. It did not meet with the entire approval of the instructor using the book and had never therefore been given out as an assignment.

The newspapers immediately took up the affair pro and con until every one in the length and breadth of the state beyond its borders knew of the book, and that the most execrable part of this supposedly execrable book was a special Chapter. The book was known to have been withdrawn from the University public lest it corrupt their young ideas and shake their faith.

The inevitable result of such publicity needs no telling to any observer of human nature. Up to the time of the investigation the book had been a more or less obscure document, read in part by certain classes in Philosophy, and ignored by every one else. The particular chapter under fire had as we stated before never been given out as required reading, which means that it had never been read by the students as any one familiar with college life knows. After the investigation however the sales of the book and the demands for it at the libraries took a sudden jump. The entire college public read it from cover to cover, and not only read it, including the terrible Chapter, but discussed it and thought about it and remembered it, many of them approvingly.

So it is ever with a superimposed censorship. It defeats its own ends by giving prominence to the very matters which it seeks to suppress. Nothing serves so well to advertise a production or a style, or a book as a wholesale condemnation of the same by some individual or group, especially it would seem, if that condemnation is upon moral grounds. Many a time we have longed to comment unfavorably upon some undertaking, to urge against attendance at some movie or other performance which seemed to us unworthy, but have refrained knowing that in no other way could we so surely fan the flame of public interest in the production and swell the sale of seats to a certain large part of the public.

It is fortunate, however, when an imposed censorship does no worse than defeating its own ends and strengthening and arousing public interest in that which it seeks to stamp out. When it reaches the point as it has done many times during the present period of war-hysteria, when it interferes with the constitutional rights of American citizens to free speech, free press and free assembly, a far more serious outcome threatens. Such censorship means an attempted cutting off of the exhaust of the safety valve of human progress, and even were this possible of accomplishment it would only end in ultimate explosion.

Effective censorship can never be a censorship imposed upon an unwilling and uninterested public by some outside intelligence. It can only be accomplished through an educated public taste and conscience, trained to select the best, whether in art or literature or recreation.

KOMICAL TELEGRAMS

By JIM ARMITAGE, Himself

This is going to be a busy week in Ladies Society circles. Saturday night the Y. W. C. A. give a "Cafeteria Supper". They don't charge anything to get in, but your pocketbook won't be heavy enough to bother you on the way out.

It looks like a campaign to encourage indigestion. The young ladies are to do the cooking. All the doctors seem to favor it at this time of the year when business is a little dull.

There's going to be a vaudeville program, too. Ruth Ely is going to perform on a tight rope and Missus Art Beebe is going to make a speech on "How I make Art wash the dishes."

Guess they're going to use the proceeds to send a foreign missionary—to Lorain.

I've never been to one of their dinners, but I've had ptomaine poisoning twice.

It is planned to hold the affair on the lawn at Missus Gates Stevens' home. But if the weather stays this way, Missus Stevens better order another load of coal.

Then on Friday night the Civic Club presents "My Lady Friends." Don't get me wrong. I don't mean a lot of blonds I run around with. "My Lady Friends" is the name of the play.

It may be all right but I'd rather pal around with "The lady friends" of Johnnie Gray or Don Granger. They might be easier to look at.

They were going to present "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" but since Prohibition, they couldn't find a bar room, even to spend an evening in.

WHO'S WHO IN THE DAY'S NEWS

STANLEY BALDWIN

England's new premier, Stanley Baldwin, is, first of all, a business man. So say his closest associates. Baldwin inherited his business and enlarged it by his own personal gifts. He is the head of the Baldwin iron works, a great Welsh enterprise with which his new chancellor of the exchequer, Sir Robert Horne, has recently become associated.

STANLEY BALDWIN

His first position of importance was financial secretary to treasury, which office he held to 1921. It was in this department that his financial genius was first realized. He was sent to the board of trade as president with a seat in the cabinet. This position corresponds to that of the American secretary of commerce. Baldwin was, in very truth, the Hoover of England, and he quickly added to the reputation which he had already earned at the treasury. The post-war trade of England prospered as his own business had prospered with a Baldwin at the helm.

He was one of the first cabinet ministers to revolt from the coalition. Therein lay his courage. Not many men of that time had the temerity to try to break down Lloyd George's political despotism.

But Baldwin, comparatively a young politician, not only did so, but had as much to do with the success of the seceding movement as anybody else. He was one of the leading spirits in the Carlton club meeting last October which brought the break to a head. The coalition was dead, after seven years of stormy rule.

England's revision to party government brought the Conservative government to power for the first time since 1906. Baldwin was then in the office of the Baldwin iron works. He had two more years to go before he even entered the house.

He was chancellor of the exchequer in the Tory ministry that succeeded the coalition government. One of the thorniest problems he was called upon to tackle was the funding of the American debt. His predecessor, Sir Robert Horne, had made arrangements for the funding operation before the coalition fell and Baldwin had to take up the task. He came over to America at the head of a small mission of bankers and aids and put through an arrangement that was subsequently accepted by both the American and the British governments.

TIMELY VIEWS ON WORLD TOPICS

2,500,000 MILES OF U. S. ROADS STILL UNIMPROVED, SAYS BUREAU CHIEF

The magnitude of the country's road improvement problems is emphasized in a summary of the government's participation made by Thomas H. MacDonald, Chief of the United States Bureau of Public Roads.

THOMAS H. MACDONALD

"Long strides have been made in improvement of roads in the United States," he said recently, "but the building program of the country has scarcely been dented. The Federal Government gives a little more than 6 per cent of aid to States and localities in meeting the expenses of improving roads. Since 1916 the Bureau of Public Roads has undertaken a program of 180,000 miles of road improvement help.

"Throughout the United States last year a total of $976,000,000 was spent by the Federal Government, the States, counties and municipalites in building and improving roads. There are 2,800,000 miles of roads in this country of which 2,500,000 miles remain to be improved.

"Building of good automobile roads will not hurt railroads but will help them. Statistics in hand will disprove the contention held by some that States expending funds for motor roads are spending money for the benefit of the country at large rather than for the States themselves.

"Most of the traffic is local, that is within the State. Take the case of Connecticut, for instance. There the traffic on the highways is 70 per cent. local. That is, it is traffic confined within the State's borders, giving the State the largest benefit of its road improvement. In general, we have found that 35 per cent of the road traffic on automobile highways is truck or short-haul traffic and that 65 per cent. is pleasure. But the bulk of traffic remains within State boundaries."

POEMS THAT LIVE

COTSWOLD LOVE

Blue skies are over Cotswold
And April snows go by,
The lasses turn their ribbons,
For April's in the sky,
And April is the season
When Sabbath girls are dressed,
From Redbow to Campden,
In all their silken best.

An ankle is a marvel
When first the buds are brown,
And not a lass but knows it,
From Stow to Gloucester town,
And now a girl goes walking
Along the Cotswold lanes
But knows men's eyes in April
Are quicker than their brains.

It's little that it matters,
So long as you're alive,
If you're eighteen in April,
Or rising sixty-five,
When April comes to Amberly
With skies of April blue,
And Cotswold girls are briding
With slyly tilted shoe.
—John Drinkwater.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

I wish to state that I am an American. I was born in Iowa. Dec. 3, 1856, and I stand for true american principals.

In the time of the war when I told them how it would come out, they said I ought to be locked up. They have called me pro-German, pro-Turk and non-American, but what do I care. You know what we got, and what we are getting. I have read the papers very carefully and note what they say. They have given it from every way, land and place, but nothing from the Bible, which is the source of all light.

Read James, chapter 1, vr. 5 to 9, and if you want to know anything, ask your minister. Read 2 Timothy, chapter 4, vr. 1 to 6. If you don't think we are living in the Last Days, read 2 Timothy, chapter 3, vr. 1 to 8. We say this is a Christian Nation. If so, we must know what the Bible says. You all know what the Bible says on these subject, so I will only call your attention to some. We have 2 lines of prophesy book, chapter 2, vr. 1, 31 to 44, starting 606 B. C., to the end of this world. Also same book, chapter 7, vr. 1 to 4; chapter 7, vs. 5; chapter 7, vr. 6; chapter 7, vr. 7, 8, 19 to 25. How many of them are fulfilled? The Bible tells. Where are we living today? Ask your minister. You know what he will say, but just read chapter 13, vr. 1 to 11; same book, chapter 11, also chapter 12. If you want to know what God says of Turkey, just read chapter 13, vr. 1 to 11, and what he says of Uncle Sam, is all told in his word.

Don't worry about a League of Nations. There won't be any, but a World's Court, and Uncle Sam as Judge. Same book chapter 12, vr. 11 to 13. Don't worry about the far East. God will take care of them. Same book, chapter 17, vs. 12, 13, 14, 15 to 17; same book chapter 16 vr. 12, 13, 14 to 16. Ask your minister where this is. And what about the rich men who are so fond of Turkey, and what he has got for them? Now read James, chapter 4, vr. 1 to 11; also James, chapter 5, vs. 1 to 16, and now see what they say. Read Revelation, chapter 6 vr. 12 to 18. Now, do you want any of the Turkey.

The minister will say that I am crazy, but if any of them wish to shoot at me, let them fire the big guns first. I have the goods, and can show them with my chart and Bible what Turkey, England, and Uncle Sam will do, and the outcome of it all. So if there are any who want to take sides, get in the fight for God and Man.

Hoping to hear from someone soon, I remain, as ever yours,

FIGHT IN RACE FOR MINNESOTA SENATE CHAIR

ST. PAUL, May 24.—Promise that the fight for the United States senatorship left open by the recent death of Knute Nelson would be brisk and many sided was made today when the list of candidates filing reach eight. Others may file up until Tuesday.

The primary election will be on June 18. Lively contests are expected within the farmer labor and republican party ranks. On the republican side the candidiates thus far are Governor J. A. O. Preus, Congressman Sidney Anderson, Congressman Thomas Schall, Judge Oscar Hallam, and former Congressman Ernest Lundeen. Preus, Anderson and Hallam represent the conservative wing. The insurgent or liberal elements are championed by Schall. In Loden radical forces claim to have a supporter.

Magnus Johnson, of the farm labor group, gave Governor Preus a close race in the 1922 election. The others of this party are R. A. Henning, head of the Northwestern railroad ship crafts and Charles A. Lindberg, who was the non partisan league candidate for governor in 1918.

The democratic state central committee has invited State Senator James L. Carley to file, but neither he nor any other democrats has done so thus far.

LOVE FINDS A WAY

Mamie McCue, down on First avenue,
Was in love with young Terrence O'Flynn.
Often he'd said they would surely be wed;
He had told her ag'in and ag'in.

She darned all his socks and she saved all his rocks
That he made on the street-sweepin' force.
And every one thought, and by good right they ought,
That a wedding would follow, of course.

Then Terry O'Flynn got a job selling gin
For a bootlegger in Canal street
And in two weeks or so he took in so much dough
He clean forgot Mamie, his sweet.

He trouped with the dames with the swell Broadway names,
And he hung out around the white lights.
And Mamie McCue didn't know what to do
To find out where Terry was nights.

For this broth of a boy was her pride and her joy,
And her heart it was broken for fair
When one day Terry said he was going to be wed
To a jane in the chorus up there.

But was Mamie dismayed? No, a smooth hand she played,
And she tipped the cops off, it appears,
That Terry O'Flynn was bootleggin' the gin,
And the court sent him up for five years.

Mamie went up to wait by the old prison gate
When her Terry came out from his stretch.
She was dressed up so grand that you must understand
She was truly a beautiful sketch.

"You will marry me now that you've quit the hoosegow,"
Said she to young Terrence O'Flynn.
And she gave him a look that spoke more than a book;
And he said: "Darlin' Mamie, you win!"

THE DEVIL AND MAC

MacSweeney MacPherson MacFeatherstonehaugh
Awoke one bleak morn in October
Astride of a tombstone. (The weather was raw
And Mac, to tell truth, wasn't sober.)

As a man whose perceptions were feeble and dim
He failed to recall it was Friday,
And so misconstrued the loud trumpet of him
Who sold fish to the housewives tidy.

With a smile on his face and a tian in his head
Came Robin the practical joker
Along with a comrade all costumed in red,
With two horns, and a tail, and a poker.

"Will you tell me the noo, lad," said Mac to his friend,
"Is it Gabriel's trumpet I'm hearin'?"
"Faith it is that," said Robin, "so stand up on end—
Can ye no see the angels appearin'?"

"Lord! I canna see oni!" said poor Mac in dismay.
"I'm as blind as a bat in the mornin';
But if ye'll be kind, will ye show me which way
Ere they think it's salvation I'm scornin'."

"Hush! They're callin' the names," said bold Robin Adair,
"They'll come to the 'M's' in a minute.
So sit yoursel' doon. If your ain is no there
'Twill mean heaven won't find ye in it."

Mac sat himself down like a chain-laden slave
And twitched like a man in a fever,
While Robin announced in a manner suite grave:
"You're done for—they've passed to McKeever!"

"McKeever?" said Mac. "An' they are savin' that swine!
Why—he swindled the Widow MacCurtin!"
"The same may be true, but 'tis no choice of mine,"
Said Robin. "You're doomed, an' that's certain."

Just then sprang a form from the regions of hell,
"I'll come," said the fiend, "on a mission;
Excuse me from telling what you know so well—
As an escort I know my position."

"An' what am I doomed for?" asked Mac in despair.
"Have I ever wronged anybody?"
"Your doom was Scotch whisky—the bottle lies there!
And the Pit is the price of your toddy!"

"A bottle?" said Mac. And he held up the same
Until with his eyes it was level,
"I'm domned if it isn't," said he without shame.
"You're damned and it is!" said the devil.

Dinner Stories

Pretty Susie Smith had been studying medicine, and although she did not make much actual progress at the work, she managed to get along very well with the lecturers, for she had what is called "a way with her."

Whenever she was asked a question she could not answer she would smile in a most appealing way. When the examinations came along she was equally successful.

"Now, Miss Smith," said the examiner, "tell me how you would treat a case of typhoid?"

"Well, sir," was the hesitating reply, "I—I should er——"

"Yes, yes!" said the professor impatiently. "Go on."

"I—I—" Then with a rush, "I should call you in for consultation."

She passed with honors.

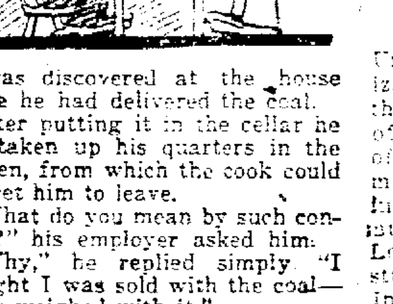

Auntie, sewing by the fireside in her bedroom, noticed that little Muriel, whom she had left to play in the sitting room below, was unusually quiet.

At last she went downstairs, and, opening the door, she saw Muriel sitting in an easy chair with her hands folded.

"Well, dear," said auntie, "can't you find anything to do?"

"I can't find anybody to play 'Hide the Thimble' with me," the child replied, "so I've hidden it myself, and now I'm waiting until I've forgotten where I put it!"

It was his first morning at the coal yard, recites the Minneapolis Tribune, and he was instructed to deliver a load. As he failed to return a search was instituted, and he was discovered at the house where he had delivered the coal.

After putting it in the cellar he had taken up his quarters in the kitchen, from which the cook could not get him to leave.

"What do you mean by such conduct?" his employer asked him.

"Why," he replied simply "I thought I was sold with the coal—I was weighed with it."

The proprietor of a small medium priced hotel recently installed as night clerk his brother, a big, burly, raw Irishman, fresh from Ireland. He instructed him carefully as to his duties, being very particular in telling him that he should not neglect to call the roomers in the different rooms at the time specified upon the register, according to "Judge."

Dennis, the new clerk, was also bellboy, and from five in the morning he was as busy as a bee rousing the roomers. No. 47 at 5:10, No. 42 at 5:20, and so on. Around six o'clock was his busy season. He was going up and down the halls, rapping and bellowing in a voice not very mild, when the door of room thirty opened and a man stepped out. Dennis looked at his list, and there, sure enough, was room No. 30 to be called at eight o'clock.

"Aren't you the man who left the call for eight o'clock?" Dennis asked.

"Yes", answered the man, "but I had a good sleep, and as it's a nice morning I thought I would go out for a walk."

"Oh, no; not at all, me fine man," said Dennis, grabbing him not very gently by the arm and marching him back to room No. 30 and pushing him in. "You stay there till eight o'clock, me bucko. If you wanted to go out at six o'clock, why didn't you have it down in the book?"

OLANGO, P. I., May 24.—Probably the most heterogenous collection of humanity ever embarked for a trans Pacific voyage today made their way aboard the United States army transport Moerrit which will be their "ark" to carry them to America—their promised land. They are the 565 remaining souls of the band of 8,000 that fled red Russia last winter with Admiral Stark on the famous "white" fleet.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Official denial was made at the state department today that any orders had been issued to Jacob Gould Schurman, the American minister at Peking, to employ United States troops against the Shantung bandits.

TOPEKA, Kansas, May 24.—Many creeks and rivers of the state today were bank full and overflowing, inundating the lowlands as a result of heavy rains.

A class of 215 new citizens of the United States will receive naturalization papers at a ceremony under the auspices of the Omaha Council of Americanization and affiliation of the American Legion. The meeting will take place on Washington's birthday. A program of music and dramatics provided by the Legion, Boy Scouts, high school students and members of the 17th Infantry of Omaha is planned.

THEATRES

AMERICAN—"Gypsy Passion," adapted from the story, "Miarka, the Child of the Bear". It is a story of a gypsy romance set in French surroundings. The story is a pretty romance, and has a distinct gypsy atmosphere all the way. The picture was taken and finished in the open, and over 5000 gypsies take part. The cast is a wonderful one, and the entire picture is one of extreme merit.

COLONIAL—Betty Blythe in "The Darling of the Rich." It deals with high life among the millionaires of New York, and consequently has many rich and lavish scenes. No expense has been spared to make realistic the atmosphere of Manhattan wealth and fashion. The story is an entertaining one, capably produced, and should please the public.

GRAND—"The Dangerous Age" shows a spectacular race between an automobile and a train, culminating in a sensational smash up; a horse race staged especially with ten horses and jockeys, a magnificent cafe scene with handsome gowned women, and last, but vitally important, a wedding scene.

DREAMLAND—A real Western with Jack Hoxie, in "The Crow's Nest." This picture is one of the best, and will attract those who love adventure, and excitement. In addition there is a fine comedy.

FORTNIGHTLY CLUB IS TOLD HOW PEOPLE LIVE IN INDIA

The Fortnightly Club met at the home of Miss Eva Reefy on Third St., Wednesday afternoon. The study hour was given over to Prof. Arthur D. Bogges of Baldwin-Wallace College, who spoke on "How People Live in India."

In part, he said, of the 317-000,000 people in India at least 300,000,000 are very poor and live in huts made of mud, grasses and bam boo, having no windows and only one opening for a door way.

They have no furniture to speak of, only a brass cooking dish, a grain jar in the corner and perhaps a very crude bed. This is adequate however, for they only eat one meal a day their wage only being five cents daily

The Hindu works hard but not efficiently. He lives in a village and goes out each day to care for his small farm. The women do any work on the farm except where oxen are used and since the oxen are more sacred to the Hindu than woman she dare not touch them. The poor people of India are forced to keep together in villages to protect themselves from the wild animals and thieves and also on account of the caste system and scarcity of good water.

Ignorance is the cause of much suffering in India. The babes are carried on their mother's heads in baskets, blindness resulting from the intense glare of the sun.

Their belief in the transmigration of soul prevents them from killing the filthy rats and fleas which carry the plague, and also the extremely poisonous snakes whose bites cause the death of thousands yearly

It is most necessary for Europeans to have native servants on account of the intense heat and also as a protection These servants are only paid three and a third dollars a month

There is no free education in India. The government has schools but tuition is required of all who attend. The attendance is poor, due to the average poor health of the natives

Only 10 percent of the men can read and 1 percent of the women However, Prof Bogges said that the women of India have proven themselves splendid home makers lawyers, doctors and teachers when given an education

He mentioned the lack of joy as being very evident for the Hindu has little chance to be happy, and from what he has seen while teaching Political Econ[illegible] in India for five years, [illegible] be very premature for the Indians to be given the privilege to rule themselves because of so few being educated properly to be the head because of the differences in religion

TODAY'S RECIPES

Baked Eggs—Butter ramekins, break an egg into each, season and cover with two tablespoons of milk. Place in a pan of hot water and bake in the oven till set. This is an attractive way to serve egg to a child.

Brown Sauced Potatoes—Before you cook the ham, brown it on all sides in a skillet. Remove it to a deep pan, add boiling water and simmer till tender. Utilize the brown crust in the skillet for making a cream gravy, one-half of the liquid being the water in which the ham is cooking. Parboil new potatoes, drop them into the sauce and sprinkle with chopped parsley.

Lettuce Piquante—Make the following dressing in the usual method for oil mayonnaise: One cup salad oil, two tablespoons vinegar, one egg yolk, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon mustard, one-quarter teaspoon tumeric, one-quarter teaspoon chilli powder, paprika. Pour over hearts of lettuce and top with grated raw carrot.

Orange Charlotte—Prepare pineapple tapioca by cooking in a double boiler one pint of juice and water, two tablespoons of tapioca and sugar to taste. This will seem thin, but will stiffen when cold. Line a glass dish with ladyfingers. Fill the center with chopped oranges and walnut meats and pour over the tapioca, which has had a quantity of whipped cream beaten into it. Or, if preferred, the beaten white of egg.

Today's menu includes suitable menu for a three-year-old child.

SUGGESTIONS

Serving Two Purposes—On wash day cook one cup of rice in one gallon of water for thirty minutes. Drain and use water for starch. This makes the finest kind of starch, while rice is cooked and ready to eat. Use in puddings.

Unbleached Muslin—Iron unbleached muslin on the wrong side and it looks like new. Also if there is any embroidery on the unbleached muslin aprons they are more easily ironed on the wrong side and look much nicer.

To Keep Pies From Boiling Over—To keep pies from boiling over make a little roll of stiff paper or use a small piece of macaroni, insert in center of pie, and steam will escape through this little pipe and prevent juice from running out.

Cleaning Ivory—Ivory which has become yellow may be easily cleaned and its whiteness restored by the following method: Take half of a lemon, dip it in salt and rub over the discolored ivory. Wipe off immediately with a soft cloth.

Celery Soup—Cook celery tops and one onion in one cup water, strain and add one and one-half cups milk and one tablespoon butter creamed with one tablespoon flour and salt to taste. Heat and serve.

Salad—Dice equal parts of celery and apple, add hickory nut meats. Arrange on lettuce leaf and cover with salad dressing.

Cocoanut Cookies—Take one cup sugar, one-half cup shortening, one cup sour milk, one cup flour, three cups rolled oats (ground), two eggs, one teaspoon soda, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon baking powder, one package cocoanut (one-quarter pound). Separate eggs and add whites, beaten stiff, last. Drop with teaspoon on greased pan. Bake brown very slowly.

WITH WOMEN OF TODAY

OUR WOMAN LAWMAKERS

Mrs. J. P. Ivy is the fourth and last of the feminine quartet elected to the Arizona House of Representatives It is hard to mention any one of these women without calling to mind the others for they lost no time in banding together to work for the sex. They were three Democrats and one Republican but worked for the passage of a minimum wage of $16 for women. Arizona already had a minimum wage law for women making the wage $10 and the new bill backed by Mrs Ivy and the other women in the legislature asked for $16 because, according to Mrs. Ivy, "unless a woman is in domestic service she cannot live on less than this amount DOWN among the hills of Fairfield County, Ohio, lies the little city of Lancaster. And in this city is located the plant that produces Lancaster Cord and Fabric Tires.

The motoring world hasn't "beaten a path to the door" of this home of better tires. Nor was any such merchandising miracle hoped for. The makers of Lancasters realized that good tires were not a rarity.

Therefore they "graded their own" highways of distribution. Believing that the Lancaster Line offered the motorist more for his money, they started "to tell the world" about the superior quality of their products

They told us. And their story—their samples—their performance-records carried conviction. Now we know that Lancasters do wear longer. We know they are the best tires for us to sell—because they are the safest tire investment you can make.

ELDOTREAD TIRE & SUPPLY CO.

Come in. See the Lancaster Cut-Away Cross-Section—the famous beveled buttress—bridge truss construction—and the semi-flat tread—features developed by Lancaster and quickly adopted by other leading tire manufacturers as standard construction.

ERHART

ERHART, May 24 Many friends and scholars of N. Williams were sorry to hear that he is not going to teach at Belden as he was a good teacher. All wish him good success as he was liked by all.

Mrs. Charles Neff entertained Sunday in honor of her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Neff, who has just returned from their honeymoon. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. John Grobenstter and sons Frank, Andrew and John, Miss Lizzie Grobenstter of Litchfield, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Miller and family of Medina, Mrs. Amelia Kennedy and family of Michigan, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Brodt at Litchfield, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Reece and family of Chippewa Lake, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Brenner and Dr. Yost at LaGrange.

Mr. and Mrs. James April and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Neff and family, Arthur Neff, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Neff, Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Spieth and family spent Sunday evening in Grafton.

GIRL TAKES UP QUIZ WHERE STATE QUIT

Charles "Chuck" Palmer and his fiancee, Miss Florence Eichenstein.

The inquisitiveness of the law may be satisfied easily but not so that of a woman, particularly in a heart affair. When Mrs. R. G. Bachman told authorities in Chicago that she had been a former friend of Charles "Chuck" Palmer Northwestern university athlete and that he might be able to explain the nature of the death of young Mount, believed slain by hazers, Palmer had no difficulty satisfying the law, but he hasn't yet been able to explain all about "Vi," Mrs. Bachman, to the satisfaction of his fiancee, Miss Florence Eichenstein.

WITH WOMEN OF TODAY

OUR WOMEN LAWMAKERS

Ohio is unusual in having a New York woman sitting in the state legislature. She is Mrs. May Van Wye. Mrs. Van Wye adopted Ohio as her state after her marriage and has lived in Cincinnati ever since. Her husband is Benjamin C. Van Wye, professor at the University of Cincinnati. "My election came as a surprise to me," says Mrs. Van Wye. "I was not active in politics previous to my nomination and I knew of no reason for the women proposing to me except for my long and active work as an executive in the Y. W. C. A. I may say that my work in the Y. W. has helped me with many of the labor problems concerning women which have come before me." Mrs. Van Wye was elected by the Republicans of Hamilton county to sit in the lower House.

MRS. M. VAN WYE

FEMININE ROTARIANS

Now there is established a women's rotary club. Many do not know the professions and various lines of endeavor in which women are engaged. This new organization throws some light upon who's who in the fields. There are coffee and tea tasters, executives of large companies, women engineers, women doctors, women lawyers, women architects, women bird specialists, women bankers, women auditors and women undertakers. There are women in every line of industry and in the five hundred classifications. Two feminine organizations recently established are Altrusa and onta. The former follows the idea of the men's Rotary clubs and the latter is patterned after the Kiwanis clubs. Both are now national organizations.

ABOUT WOMEN THE WORLD OVER

Germany—The German National Council of Women is giving instructions in every community to educate women in their new duties as jurors. The privilege of serving on the jury was only recently granted the women of Germany.

Holland—In spite of the fact that Holland has discriminated against women for judicial positions, they are admitted to the highest posts in the Dutch civil service. And, further, the number of women holding such posts has been steadily gaining.

Anticosti, the Gulf of St. Lawrence island, leased by M. Menier, the French chocolate manufacturer for a game preserve, is about one and one-half times as large as Delaware.

Cracking of enameled ware is due to the fact that the enamel does not "fit" the iron over which it is placed, according to an investigation at the Bureau of Standards.

Greatest frequency and force of the winds in England occur about two weeks before the vernal or spring equinox and about 21 days after the autumnal equinox.

Physical exercise at Harrow-School, England, in 1580 was that on Thursdays the pupils should "drive a top, toss a handball, to run, or shoot—but none other."

SULPHUR IS BEST TO CLEAR UP UGLY SKIN
Any breaking out or skin irritation on face, neck or body is overcome quickest by applying Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation that instantly brings ease from the itching, burning and irritation.
Mentho-Sulphur heals eczema right up, leaving the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment or disfigurement. A little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur may be obtained at any drug store. It is used like cold cream. —Advt.
